

Thank you for making the
Carson Scholars Fund's
17th Annual National Day of Reading
a success!

Sponsored by The Bruni Foundation

Since 2005, the Carson Scholars Fund's National Day of Reading celebrations have taken place in reading room schools across the country. This literacy event unites students and educators to reinforce the importance of reading and discover the power and joy found between the pages of a book.

For the 17th Annual National Day of Reading, the CSF featured the children's book, Trombone Shorty. This Caldecott Honor book and winner of the Coretta Scott King Award tells the real-life story of New Orleans native and musical prodigy, Troy Andrews.

Impact:

- 175 Trombone Shorty books distributed to CSF school partners.
- Over 8,000+ students participated in the National Day of Reading event.

