

Student Introduction to National Day of Reading:

Hello friends! I hope we are all having a marvelous day!

As we all know, our school is lucky enough to have a Ben Carson/Think Big Reading Room, where we can dive into countless adventures, explore new worlds, and relax with a good book. Today is a very special day dedicated to something we love to do in that room and just in general! Can you guess what today is all about?

That's right...reading! Today we are celebrating The Carson Scholars Fund's National Day of Reading!

To celebrate, we have a few fun things planned. First, we'll hear from Dr. Ben Carson and his wife, Mrs. Candy Carson, in a video where they will introduce our book of the day and talk about the importance of reading. Then we'll listen to today's book, All the World by Liz Garton Scanlon, and do some fun activities!

So, get your listening ears ready and your imaginations prepared to explore. Let's think big, read big, and discover the world through new books!
